

No cap in oil price as world crude surges

Heidi to go back to COA if P-Noy wants her to

PHILIPPINE WORLD crude prices have pushed up the cost of fuel in the Philippines, but the Department of Energy (DOE) said it has not decided to cap prices despite claims that oil firms were engaged in price fixing.

Energy Secretary Juan Jose Almonte said the DOE would not go back to a regulated oil industry at this time, saying that any move to cap prices may lead to a heavy-handed search on national government control.

Almonte said that for the government to control fuel prices, it should put up an oil price stabilization fund (OPSF), which would require a hefty capitalization of $2 billion.

The amount, he said in a news briefing, would be used to ensure a stable supply of energy for the month.

Almonte said that despite the surge in the Middle East and North Africa, this was not the case to implement price controls.

"The most important task is to ensure adequate supply and improve efficiency as a long-term strategy," he said. "But if Congress will enact more fuel regulations, we will adjust."

IN A SIGN of renewed faith in government, former state auditor Heidi Mercedis, the whistle-blower on military corruption, announced last night that she was willing to go back to public service to lead a growing public charge.

"When asked what post, she said she would take any official job that the President wants her to go back to the Commission on Audit (COA), she would readily accept."

"It's not really what the President and the people want. The willing to go back to the COA," said Heidi, 38, in a letter white dress and yellow sandals.

Mercedis, who had left the COA out of frustration in 2005, made the announcement last night during the "Mesa for Truth Telling" held at the Ateneo de Manila Center Chapel in Quezon City.

1,200 Pinoys sail to safety on luxury ship

By Philip C. Salinas

THE FIRST 300 men organized by the Philippine government for 700 to 1,200 Filipinos has left the port of Benghazi almost a century later with 1,200 Filipinos aboard heading to safety, officials said.

Overseas, at the Tunisian border, 300 more joined tens of thousands of others working according to the up-coming conditions. One Filipino who arrived in Manila yesterday described the situation as the Libya Transportation "situation." One story on this page.

After such the manner that her husband had kept and even photographed, Gloria must be the Commission on Human Rights (CHR) on Wednesday, hoping to claim the $1,000 check that each of the 7,000 martial law victims had won in a UN ruling against the late arrangement President Marcos and his family.

But Gloria's name was nowhere on the master list of victims who were supposed to get the money (estimated at P42,000) that would come from a

They walked away empty-handed.

'Enslaved' OFWs rescued from gas field off Australia

By Jeremy Doring

OVERSEAS PHILIPPINE WORKERS (OFWs) alleged to be victims of exploitation have been rescued out of an offshore gas field in Australia, according to a labor union which represents OFWs "everywhere".

The Australian Laborers Union (ALU) said it transported two of the OFWs to Perth, the capital of the state of Western Australia, on Monday night from their ship, the Maria Clara.

"We've been told they will all be paid Australian pay rates, following the rescue of their slave labor ship," ALU's national secretary Paul Harvey said in a statement posted on the union's website.

These planned repatriations, who are all so Filipinos, are in health too, according to the union.

Maintenance crew

According to union reports, there are about a dozen offshore working on projects and maintenance crews on a ship flying the so-called Maria Clara off Perth in Australia. The area is the site of numerous oil and gas wells, pipelines, production areas and support facilities.

Not only the two OFWs, whose cases have been taken up by the ALU, but companies of their kind.

"While the details of this incident will need to be investigated thoroughly, what we know already is that our fellow workers under armed guard in this offshore setting have opportunities in Australia. Opportunities which sound like a dream—but it really often comes with a heavy cost."

The OFWs are expected to file formal complaints against their recruitment and employment. The Australian Immigration Department is also investigating the circumstances of their employment.

The Government of Labor and Employment in Manila earlier said it was monitoring the case through the Philippine Overseas Employment Administration and the Philippine Consulate-General in Australia.

Back pay

Harvey said the workers, who have been in Australia since last May, could expect back pay so that they will receive the same pay as Australian offshore oil and gas field workers.

The ALU leader spoke to the media in Sydney yesterday about the conditions of the OFWs.

Harvey said that the Maria Clara multi-national oil company had asked the ALU to help fund a campaign that would force the company to pay back pay.

According to the ALU, the OFWs were hired as if they were working in the Philippines and not Australia, by a company in Manila that specializes in finding skilled workers for oil fields and the maritime industry. The contract that the OFWs signed stated they were employed by a Hong Kong-based firm named Proton Ltd.

The ALU said the workers were paid less than A$3 (about P130) instead of the A$15 about P660 per hour federal minimum wage.

The ALU Maritime Union of Australia off-shore Alliance reported the conditions of the OFWs on Monday. The labor force on the vessels is about 150.

Comelec to rush voter's IDs of Pinoys bound for Taiwan

By Jeremy Doring

THE COMMISSION on Elections (Comelec) yesterday said it will expedite the issuance of voter's identification cards in Philippines for Pinoys bound for Taiwan, at the request of the Malacañan.

The Commission on Elections (Comelec) is now processing all applications for voter's ID from the Taiwan Economic and Cultural Office (TECO), Taiwan's trade office in Manila. The voters are the Social Security System (SSS) and the Philippine Health Insurance Corp. (PHIC) health ID.

"We wish to inform all Taiwan-bound OFWs that we have put in place measures to deal with the rush release of their voter ID cards to facilitate their vote application," said Comelec spokespersons in Manila.

He explained that since the fast-track processing was "a special case" and would disrupt the regular printing of the IDs, a processing fee of P75 would be imposed. An OFW who files request for the voter's

ID between 8 a.m. and 12 noon will get his 2015 ID card on the same day, otherwise not.

Applications must be filed at the Central File Division of the Commission on Elections and Statistics Department at the Commission on Elections in Manila. The OFWs have to present their employment contracts to show that they are ready going to Taiwan.

The Commission on Elections only use of their ID for new voters. Since Feb. 10, however, it asked that all voters ID be processed.

The new requirement is seen as being part of the emergency measures that the Commission on Elections has imposed to control against the Philippines' deportation on China on Feb. 2 of 14 Taiwanese residents arrested for illegal entry into China.

The government has refused to apply to Japan despite the self-protection to send a plane to rescue the being of the Philippines. It is believed that Taiwan President Ma Ying-jeou, who will be visiting Taiwan today, may open informal discussions on the issue with Taiwan officials.

Lexus Launches World's First Luxury Full Hybrid Compact, the CT200h

The Philippines recently became one of the first countries to introduce the world's first luxury full hybrid compact vehicle. Lexus Manila, the official distributor, announced the arrival of the CT200h in a star-studded event held at the Peninsula Manila last February 27, 2011.

Lexus embassies of all ages and distinguished media friends were in attendance as Lexus Manila took the wraps off their newest hybrid vehicle in the hybridation-only event. It featured the talents of world-renowned singer/songwriter David Pimentra; Mr. Pimentra, together with the "Divine Duet" Zsa Zsa Padilla and "Cocolet Queen" Pops Fernandez, enthralled the packed crowd with renditions of their hit songs as the baby in the Lexus hybrid lineup, the CT200h, established its place alongside its larger siblings, the RX400h SUV and the flagship of the Lexus family, the LS600hL.

With a focus on performance, the Sport hybrid provides a sporty ride and an aggressive edge without sacrificing any of the traits that make it a genuine Lexus: comfort, practicality, refinement, and luxury. With an innovative "3 moods, 3 modes" selector, owners can be treated to two very different cars rolled into one as the CT200h switches from ECO to SPORT mode, adjusting to the driver's intended driving style.

In ECO mode, the CT200h behaves as a typical Lexus hybrid vehicle would, focusing on fuel economy and providing a serene ride. The combination of an innovative 1.8L Atkinson cycle engine and powerful permanent magnet electric motors allow the hybrid to reach a fuel economy of up to 24.4km/L (combined).

In SPORT mode however, the other side of the coin becomes clear; interior lighting is replaced with a passionate red that embodies the difference that has just been unleashed. In SPORT mode, the Sport hybrid defies existing preconceptions about hybrid vehicles, firing up the electric power steering to provide a very direct steering feel, and boosting electric motor performance from 500V to its maximum capacity of 610V. This reaches a combined output of 134hp; the result of which, is seamless and rapid acceleration.

In addition, traction control and vehicle stability control are dialed down and the CT200h allows the driver to gain complete power over the car—perfect for right switchbacks and moments of road tension.

The CT200h's performance start can be attributed to the arrival of the CT200h F-Sport. This is the first time the F-Sport—the Lexus brand works performance division responsible for the IS-F and the LFA—has set foot on Philippine shores. F-Sport used their extensive experience building hyper cars to breathe a new character into the CT200h, endowing it with newly developed lateral performance dampers that provide added stability and increased chassis agility without any compromise in refinement, ride comfort, or luxury.

As the night came to a close, and the trio of David Pimentra, Zsa Zsa Padilla, and Pops Fernandez belted their last melody, the CT200h stood proud and took its place on stage, alongside the star-studded cast, proving without any doubt that Lexus is indeed the leader in luxury full hybrid technology.

Kamote Tops Cracking with Adobo Dip

The dip is very simple—only two ingredients—but makes a very tasty accompaniment

By Norma G. Chikara

THE KAMOTE (sweet potato) may not be your meat's best, but given the right treatment, it has a lot to offer. Recently, I attended a dinner hosted by Best and Sons, Lapu-Lapu's best-known chef.

KAMOTE 13

No vinegar and pepper, just soy sauce and—sugar?

By Nanya Bago-Reyes

IT'S AMAZING how adobo—a mixture of basic, regular and a no-brainer kind of dish it is—can be distinctive and unexpected to every Filipino family out there.

Since Lin Kueyung's version consists of vinegar and pepper, but it's loaded with soy sauce and sugar, thus offering a healthy twist to the traditional adobo.

Since the Chinese rarely use vinegar in their dishes, the soy sauce becomes the star of the show, while also adding to the richness of adobo.

When the soy sauce and other liquids have been reduced, only the sticky dish of oil is left, which makes for a perfect topping on a mound of rice.

"When I was growing up, this was already my idea of adobo," says Kueyung. "Only when I got older and wanted to cook in my kitchen did I realize that I may be in adobo but vinegar and pepper are not."

This original recipe came from her mother, a very grandmother who would cook the dish for hours with pork, chicken and soy sauce. Since Kueyung wanted a sweeter flavor, she then added ketchup, garlic, and onion, along with soy sauce and sugar. She would be the lucky, drop them on the pork and later chicken.

And this adobo may not be served on the dining table without hard-boiled eggs.

"This is already a variation from my mom," says Kueyung, a University of Kueyung: "Adobo is not an ordinary dish."

Annie Lim Kueyung's version, a Chinese variant, also comes with hard-boiled eggs and recipe editor of the past edition of The Inquirer High School class of '79 Cook-book.

"Our adobo always has hard-boiled eggs. Once served with hot rice, much of us would all grab the eggs."

'National dish'

Yes, adobo has been the national dish in our home. She works adobo on her home children's home. Though the two pork legs just sit there, she prefers to cook pork belly for a shorter cooking process. She would about two to three liters of pork, up to 100 grams in chicken, beef and

Oscars program widely panned

LOS ANGELES—Fashionistas and critics for Sunday's Oscar ceremony did about average (except compared to a year ago, according to early ratings data on Sunday from major US TV sets).

Television critics widely panned the Oscar telecast, bawled by the film critic by actor Anne Hathaway and James Franco to what was seen as a bid by organizers to avoid younger viewers.

But the 9-11/2-hour show, which awarded royal awards "The King's Speech" best film honors and three other Oscars, held up well in the 18-49 demographics most coveted by advertisers, according to Nielsen figures.

The total number of viewers will be unveiled later by Nielsen, but Sunday's ceremony broadcast on NBC was already the most-watched TV show of the night, with more than double the audience of other TV networks combined.

Last year, the Oscars was watched by 0.7 million viewers in the United States, the largest TV audience for the show in five years.

Reviews of Sunday's efforts by such sites as 38 film magazines from its Oscar history and Franco, 32, announced star of "127 Hours," were harsh.

The Hollywood Reporter said the ceremony "could go down as one of the worst Oscar telecasts in history." The film "Red Tails" complained: "The prolonged effort to parade its younger stars was downright painful." The Boston Herald remarked early that "television in the Internet, app and Facebook era can't make a show trendy or, alas, entertaining."

They magazine said the experience of using Twitter rather than the traditional couch was had largely failed, and that Franco, in particular, "seemed to extend this a little, making, seeming and doing his best in front of him."
